Photoshop Elements consists of several main sections: 1. File You will work on an image in the Files section. Your image will remain on your hard drive, in your Documents folder. You can also work with large images up to 4 gigabytes (GB) at a time. 2. Edit You can add text, colors, paint, add photo effects or adjust other image parameters. Also in the Edit section is the Control panel, where you can adjust common image settings, such as contrast, brightness, saturation or color balance. 3. Adjust The Adjust panel allows you to work with adjustments. You can change color correction, lighting, contrast, sharpness and clarity. 4. Pixelate Pixelate lets you create various patterns and textures. 5. History In the History panel you can undo actions and undo changes. Images and layers are grouped in History groups, which you can also use to clear actions. 6. Effects Effects lets you apply effects to images that you edit with Photoshop Elements. You can also add, remove, and edit effects. You can use the Effects panel to create a new effect, edit an existing one, save a new one to the Effects folder, and use effects from different groups. 7. Filters You can apply filters to your images. Filters can be used on individual images or groups of images. You can combine layers of images and apply filters to them. You can also add a filter preset to your workspace. 8. Strokes In the Strokes panel you can add, edit and convert strokes. You can either create your own strokes or edit an existing one. 9. Text You can add text to your image and edit the font and color. You can also work with the text panel and use various tools. 10. Painting The Painting panel lets you paint, draw and create art. You can also draw simple shapes and create shapes and guides. 11. Help You can access various documentation and tutorials to learn to use Photoshop Elements. You can also review frequently asked questions or suggest new features to Adobe. When you launch Photoshop Elements, you can either use the presets that are grouped in the presets folder, or you can start with a new image. You will select the folder where you want to save the image: If you are creating a new image, the first step 05a79cecff

Dear Abby: When I was a younger bride, the years leading up to the wedding were about getting ready for the wedding — what to wear, what color to paint my fingernails, what the maid of honor's and best man's duties would be, what to write on the wedding invitations, etc. It's different now. I would expect my husband to do all the planning, but he is apparently not up to the task. You find yourself spending too much time coordinating his schedule, and I am not talking about his meetings and appointments. I am talking about what to wear. Because you do not want to look unprepared. What to wear is a problem. Because on-line shopping does not work. I have been to nine different stores in three different cities — all of them more than 50 miles away — looking for something I like, to no avail. I thought wearing sexy underwear would make me feel better about my dress. It did not. Last week, a friend told me about a plus-size clothing boutique in our area that is a good find. But you have to do your shopping during the week, because you need to get back home from work before he is home for the weekend. You thought I was kidding, but I am not. You must make some appointments with your hair and makeup people for Friday. You must understand that what to wear is not a task. It's a necessary component in your life, but it's not a burden, an annoyance, or even a chore. You must do what you need to do to get what you want. And you have to enjoy it. Because, at the end of the day, it's about you. In the end, it's the look on your husband's face when you walk down the aisle that's the most important thing. -Bride Dear Bride: Your pain is my pain. When I was younger, I thought it was my life, my home, my husband, my kids, my career, my future. Since I was a teenager, I have grown up, gotten married, and have a son. And, like you, I have learned that things aren't always about what they seem to be. After 17 years of marriage, I know that when you look down the aisle and see the man that makes you smile, the sound of his laughter is better than the best perfume. So, the money spent on the wedding is more about

What's New In?

Orlando police are searching for suspects who ambushed a man in his driveway and shot him, and police said the shooting happened in broad daylight as the victim tried to get out of his home to call police. Police said they received multiple calls of a suspicious person along West Colonial Drive in the Loch Haven subdivision about 1:15 p.m. Sunday. When officers arrived, they found the victim in his driveway, the Orlando Sentinel reported. "The victim told officers that he heard several gunshots and then noticed multiple subjects approaching him," OPD spokesman Sgt. Daniel Spencer said. "The victim stated that he drove himself to the hospital as a precaution." Police said the suspects were able to get away, but witnesses told investigators that two of the suspects, a man and a woman, pointed guns at the victim while he tried to get in his truck, Spencer said. The woman then left, but the victim said that the men knocked him down and assaulted him before shooting him multiple times, Spencer said. A gun was found at the scene, but it's unclear whether it was used in the shooting, Spencer said. The victim was taken to Orlando Regional Medical Center's trauma unit. He was listed in stable condition, according to the hospital's website. Police identified the victim as 42-year-old Mark Burdeaux. He is listed in stable condition. Police are investigating the shooting and asking for help finding the suspects. Anyone with information should contact Crime Stoppers at (888) 287-8477. 4.0.0 org.asciidoc asciidoc 2
