Q: One-to-many relationship in EF migration code-first I'm writing some code-first migrations to update my database. I've got 2 classes that look like this.

public class Foo {
    public int ID {get; set;}
    public int Data1 {get; set;}
    public string Data2 {get; set;}
    public List Bars {get; set;}
public class Bar {
    public int ID {get; set;}
    public int Data1 {get; set;}
    public string Data2 {get; set;}
    public int FooID {get; set;}
```

I wish to join the Foo and Bar together into one entry in the Bar table. I know I can do this via SQL, but for obvious reasons I wish to keep things up to date using EF migrations. When executing Add-Migration FooInitial, all the right tables are generated, but there is not a column for Bars in the Bar table. I've tried the following to try and get EF to generate the column.

protected override
void Up(MigrationBuilder migrationBuilder) { migrationBuilder.AddColumn("FooID", "ID").InDatabase();
protected override void

Down(MigrationBuilder migrationBuilder) { migrationBuilder.DropColumn("FooID"); } Any ideas? A:
