Below are some highlights and a first-look at EA SPORTS FIFA 22. • The ball feels right. Players run through tackles naturally with the ball, rather than hoofing it into position and then trying to dribble out of the no-man’s-land between the lines. The subtle weight changes and ball movement feel right. • Referees can predict your next move. An experimental camera system inside referee shirts keeps watch at all times, and can predict your next dribble or pass, then signal to officials behind the scenes. This plays out on the pitch to give the referee a true picture of how the game is going – and also keeps the officials conscious of how they’re being portrayed on the big screen. • User created moments. Players engage in a host of action-packed, custom matches. Whether it’s the captains of Italy facing off against France’s stars of tomorrow, managers bidding to win the World Cup with their club teams, or even a barrage of extra-time strikes from World Cup legends like Ronaldo and Maradona, every game delivers a unique experience unlike any other. • New gameplay modes. FIFA Ultimate Team lets you build the ultimate squad with collectible players from all over the globe, with a host of new FUT storylines, challenges and the return of the “FCP Draft” mode. 2 vs. 2 matches have been reimaged, with new tactics and game modes to play, like Team Battles, Attacking Confusion, and Defensive Confusion. • An all-new Player Career mode with tons of new dynamic stories and events for you to live out. A new goal system lets you unlock Goalscoring Tokens for getting that winning goal. • FIFA’s first ever ticket rewards system, rewarding you for completing weekly Challenges and Missions. • A brand-new broadcast presentation, with a new graphics engine, at a high resolution, low latency level. • A brand-new crowd rendering engine, giving the new crowd animations and visual effects a major overhaul.
