"Asamardhuni Jeeva Yatra" (Translation: "Big B's Journey Through Life") is a 1959 Telugu novel by Tripuraneni Gopichand which is considered to be his magnum opus and one of the finest novels written in Telugu. The novel which was published posthumously, is often cited as one of the best novels written in Telugu literature and is often regarded as the 'landmark' achievement of the kala-veera movement in Telugu literature. The novel revolves around a law-abiding, college-educated, middle-class man named "Jeeva Yatra" (literal translation: "Big B's Journey Through Life") who is an ideal citizen of his time and place and is deeply sensitive to the social situations around him. "Asamardhuni Jeeva Yatra" tells the story of a man who leads a moderately happy, productive, and satisfying life which is threatened by the "buzzing" of a sexual addiction which slowly starts to drive him away from the ordinary life of society and forces him into a drastic act of self-discovery. "Asamardhuni Jeeva Yatra" is seen as an idealist work and Tripuraneni Gopichand is often regarded as one of the finest novelists in Telugu. On Tripuraneni Gopichand's works, film director K. Bharat Reddy stated that "he used to read tripuraneni gopichand in my childhood. I'm not exactly an avid reader. I read a few books. I read one of his novels, asamardhuni jeeva yatra. He was an idealist who put down my view that every man should be an idealist. He came from a middle-class background."In his post-mortem report, Tripuraneni Gopichand wrote that he wrote the novel as a tribute to the lives of Bengalis of that era and a comment on the revolution of Bengali nationalism. Asamardhuni Jeeva Yatra was published in a literary magazine "Sringaraabali" in the year 1959. The novel and its three parts have been adapted for the cinema twice - in Telugu cinema in the year 1965 and in Tamil cinema in the year 1983. The first adaptation is Asamardhuni Jeeva Yatra, a film directed by V. Madhusudhan Rao under the

In the video, which has since been taken down from YouTube, a shirtless Appiah dances around the apartment, banging a microphone and smashing off speakers. The second vid is more family friendly, featuring footage of the pair showing off the child to their family and friends. Appiah might not be one to suffer with a family divorce as a child, having grown up with his dad as a stable unit. However, with his current squeeze, there's no indication of that stability. In 2009, she was reported to have been preparing to file for divorce from her ex-husband, fashion designer Trevor Sorbie, after an alleged fight. And just last week, she ditched her 35-year marriage to her first husband, David Appiah, who is now her manager, stating that she's gay and is currently "in a committed relationship". You might be wondering, why on Earth would you need to file for divorce, if you are already in a "committed relationship"? Well, it's because a relationship with a man doesn't count as a legally recognised marriage. But this isn't the first time an actor has been caught out on camera. Here are 10 other star weddings which went bust. 1. Eric McCormack ('Will & Grace') In 2002, the 'Will & Grace' star wed wrestler Steve Borden - now his manager. The pair had been together for just three months when they tied the knot. 3. Amelia Warner ('Jennifer's Body') What the, wasn't this star already married? In 2007, the 'Jennifer's Body' actress got hitched to footballer Olivier Hamoudi. Unfortunately for Amelia, it lasted only a few days. 4. Al Pacino ('Fence') On the set of 'The Godfather', Pacino stumbled across the love of his life, and an iconic marriage. He married Linda DiCamillo in a private ceremony in 1994. 5. Christian Slater ('Homecoming d0c515b9f4

The New York meeting of SKORP attracted over 500 jewelry industry executives, buyers and retailers in 1985 and 1988. History In 1973, the European Federation of Jewelers' Federations (EFJ) held a "Belt and Bracelet" exhibition in London, which was a major breakthrough for the industry, and inspired the EFJ to start organizing jewelry trade exhibitions, with the first one in 1975 in Brescia, Italy, and the first in the United States in New York City in 1984. Formation The International Federation of Jewelry Manufacturers' Organizations (IFJMO) was formed at the New York exhibition. This international federation included more than 40 member companies and was formally established on February 10, 1985. The United States Federation of Jewelers (SFJ) was formed at the New York meeting of the EFJ and attended by member companies from 38 other countries. The SFJ was officially established at the London meeting of the EFJ in May, 1986, and the merger with the IFJMO was completed on October 1, 1986. In July 1989, the IFJMO changed its name to the International Trade Promotion Organization (ITPO) at the Paris meeting of the "Iris Project". This name change was effected worldwide on October 1, 1989. Internationalization During the period from 1984 until 1991, the IFJMO worked towards the goal of establishing a universally accepted system of terminology and definitions to make consistent the identification of precious and semi-precious stones, jewelry, gems and pearls among the various nations, which had to be realized first in order to contribute to increased international trade and commerce. All these efforts resulted in the passage of the "Precious and semi-Precious Stones" (Primary) Convention, the "Jewelry and Jewelry Materials" (Secondary) Convention, the "Jewelry" and "Precious and semi-Precious Stones" terminology series and the "The Kimberley Process" Protocol (on conflict diamonds) which were adopted by a group of 71 countries at the World Conference on Trade and Development (WCTD) held in Geneva, Switzerland, on April 30, 1996.

The former Martha Stewart is also undergoing a double mastectomy, but she wants to make sure that her fans get a look at her forever young and beautiful self, so she's decided to upload a video of herself on her Facebook page. Stewart, who is an avid reality TV star herself, shares a few highlights from her life, and there's no doubt that the crockpot she's using is a work of art. She also shares some helpful advice for other moms too. Even though she's encouraging her fans to look at the video, Stewart is facing several obstacles because of her health issues. "I am so grateful for the encouragement and well wishes I've received from family and friends around the
