We expect to see the increase spread to the U.S., which saw a number of large commercial lenders fail in the past year. Any hit to income could force small-business owners to slash their compensation. The information can't be used to identify any individual applicant, but we hope that this information will enable lenders to avoid future financial crises. "It's a significant problem in the small-business space," said Andrew Beyer, director of small-business lending at Wells Fargo & Co. The bank offers about $900 million in loans, he said. "We see it getting worse, because of certain financial pressures on businesses, such as raw materials costs, or as we're seeing with the tariffs, trade issues are creating a lot of volatility for small business." The U.S. is not alone: more than a quarter of the loans made globally by eight major U.S. lenders failed in the third quarter, according to the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System. The Fed's latest data shows that of the $7.5 billion in commercial loans held or disbursed by the bank during the quarter, $4.6 billion went to large businesses. "Banks are shifting to focus on bigger borrowers to stay profitable," said Lorenzo Bini Smaghi, the vice chair of the European Central Bank, who was speaking last month at a conference
