harmd by odometer fraud, and the resulting loss of the difference between what is owed and what is actually owed on the vehicle. while the financial impact of odometer fraud is significant, consumers are also harmed when title fraud is involved. title fraud occurs when a person obtains title to a vehicle by providing false information in the transaction. for example, when the car title is transferred to the buyer, the buyer and seller must sign the title application. the buyer signs the application, which includes the odometer disclosure statement, and delivers the title application to the seller. the seller signs the application, and the seller delivers the title application to the mvd with a written or electronic certification that the odometer disclosure statement is accurate. the mvd then delivers the title application to the dmV, which records the transfer of the title to the vehicle. the problem is that the buyer may have altered the odometer reading when he signs the application, and the seller may have been complicit by failing to discover the alteration and not record the fraudulent reading on the title application. alternatively, the seller may have been complicit when the buyer altered the odometer reading by failing to discover the alteration before signing the title application. 5ec8ef588b
